WHY you need this extension?

Using frequent products for sale but worried about set up of sales time schedule?

Make sales management easy and convenient with our Product scheduler extension. It can help you to schedule product availability for your pre-defined sales time period.

From the catalog of your wide range of products, set your chosen products to appear for purchase with a countdown timer for the time duration to assist your customers about their favorite product availability. It comes with a customer subscriber feature to send the notification. This will inform your customers about product purchase availability on sale launch time.

With this feature, you can organize your sales as well inform the customers about sales timings and increase your sales numbers by scheduling items available for a limited period.

For example, the seller wants to sell one or more selected products during some festivals or as a holiday sale.

In these situations, Product scheduler is a convenient way to schedule the availability of these items for sales. Just select a product and easily set launch time or ends in time from the configuration in order to schedule its availability.

Timer display helps your clients know about sale launch and duration info while browsing items and also from product view page. Email notification is also included to send emails to product subscribers about sale information upon sale launch time so they can get notified and buy those items during the time period.

WHAT are the benefits?

Schedule product available for sale with launch and ends in timers.

It is also possible to configure either launch time or ends in time separately as well to set both timers simultaneously.

This feature can also be used to display timers for coming soon items and for sale ending products.

This extension is also useful to set multiple products available for time-limited sales or flash sales as well as season sales.

Subscriber feature is available for customers interested to receive email notification about product launch time. The seller can use custom modified email templates to send as a notification email to subscribers.

The text displayed with timers or as notification content can easily be changed by the Admin to adapt with their sale themes.

The format of countdown display timer is also easily changeable to match with the Admin preference to show time format.

The seller can use custom designed email templates to set as subscription email or as product launch notification email for subscribers to adapt with the scheduled product sales.

List of subscribers with the status of notification and store view location of the subscriber is available to see as simple grid from the backend.

Most features of Product scheduler are provided with an option of whether display related field or not and can be simply set from the backend.
